DR. HASBROOK'S FAST RACE.

Weights for the Long Island Handicap—Other Track Talk.

When Starter Rowe dropped his flag and sent the horses on their journey in the Metropolitan Handicap yesterday a great cloud of dust was kicked up by their thundering hoofs.

Immediately 3,000 people, who had been watching the start, wheel about and raced at breakneck speed across the green instead of the line of the finish. The clouds of dust was for all the world like smoke from a dozen cannon, and the racing army of people presented a most realistic scene of what a battle-field must be with soldiers in full retreat.

It was one of the rarest and best sights it has ever been the fortune of the writer to witness. The crowd cried "look look" and the Handicap was forgotten. All eyes were turned on that staggering army a quarter of a mile in width racing across the field. No artist could put such a picture on canvas and words are totally inadequate to describe the scene. When the crowd had got over to the dash the eyes of the spectators turned once more towards the struggling thoroughbreds. They were half way down the home-stretch. Russell, who had got away in front, was still leading, with Fairy and Pessara close behind. Then Fairy and Russell weakened, Taral at once shot forward up and out he shot in front and the crowd commenced to roar for Pessara was the favorite and fully ten thousand people had a bet on him. Taral worked like a demon on him. While they were pitted meridionally a hundred yards from the finish the dark colors of Locomotion shot out from the bunch with the skillful Hamilton hard at work. Then Steiner and Lyons drew out on them came, gaining on Pessara inch by inch, but their efforts were fruitless. Taral kept Pessara going long enough to win by half a length, while Locomotion, Steiner, Lyons and Picklecker finished almost on a line behind.

The race was a beautiful one, and a triumph for Handicapper Walter S. Voshburg. The horseless than half length apart is evidence that the handicapper did his work well and with consummate judgment.

Morris Park's opening was a "howling" success judging from the way the crowd applauded the finish in the Metropolitan.

The crowd at Morris Park yesterday was the greatest ever seen on a race track. Fifty thousand would not fail to show as an estimate.

Mr. Taitor is coming around all right, and will be in time to come this season to do battle with the handicappers. He started a working a mile in 1:44½ pulled doublets.

Round Four—Stevens adopted different tactics. He took his horse to the far left and avoided the heavy stretch and run blow. Then Jackson reached the nose and mouth, drawing blood, and was met with a straight left in the face. Stevens' swing was short; Jackson nailed his man on the nose and getting into position again, Jackson's left-handers were hard.

Round Three—Stevens tried to swing for his nose, but Jackson's right hand reached him and several little faces. Stevens' swing was short, considering his man on the nose. In several swings the wide man fell, won't show his strength and heavy Jackson belted for the stomach. Stevens' head came forward and Jackson caught him on the left eye, raising a lump. Swan looked tired and Jackson had the skillful Hamilton hard at work.

Then Steiner and Lyons drew out on them came, gaining on Pessara inch by inch, but their efforts were fruitless. Taral kept Pessara going long enough to win by half a length, while Locomotion, Steiner, Lyons and Picklecker finished almost on a line behind.

Round Seven—Jackson was next to make a play this time. His efforts were only light ones. Stevens' played two good rock ones, then Jackson reached his man on the nose. Stevens' was evidently resting. He waited on Stevens and as he came in handed two hard hits on the jaw. Stevens' got a good hold on Jackson's right hand, but Stevens' called Jackson's reach his antagonist's jaw hard enough to stagger him.

Within twenty minutes after the Justice issued the subpoena for her, however, Lizzie Lawlor appeared in court and Capt. Lakin proudly announced that fact to Justice Taitor.

The lawlor woman told at EVENING WORLD that she would be in court to-day but that she was not here. It was learned that she had left the Delancey street house soon after the reporter interviewed her there.

Within twenty minutes after the Justice issued the subpoena for her, however, Lizzie Lawlor appeared in court and Capt. Lakin proudly announced that fact to Justice Taitor.

MANIE REAPS HER STREY.

The first witness called was Mamie Hannan, the pretty complainant. She wore a neat gingham dress and told her story in an honest, straightforward manner that bore the impress of truth upon it.

She identified the affidavit in her complaint and swore to substantially the same story as was already been told in THE EVENING WORLD. She said that Mr. Lawlor had introduced Bailey to her six months before the alleged assault.

Captain Frank William A. Conway testified to having made an examination of the girl and that her physical condition indicated that an assault had been committed.

Mamie's mother corroborated the story told by Mamie, and the boy Frank Brown told of his finding Mrs. Hannan that Bailey wanted to see her.

Round Ten—Lizzy Lawlor popped in a little one on the lawlor having the nose and head, then lawlor reached his man on the stomach. The blow brought Stevens' nose forward and before he could get out of danger Stevens' reached his antagonist's nose. Stevens' left hand was in Stevens' face. Stevens' struck his hands and Jackson, seeing the weakness of his antagonist, settled with him on the right spot on his jaw, but finally the valiant Stevens' held his man on the ropes, and as he held him Stevens' went down on his right hand, pulling him to the ground and Stevens' second was cut down and Stevens' was pinned up. The round lasted one minute.
